

Midlife Manifesto

Curiosity is the key that unlocks midlife magic.

- I am not done. Not nearly. I have as much possibility in front of me as I have experience behind me. That's what gives me so much power.
- 2 I am never starting from scratch no matter who I want to be or what I want to do next.
- I accept responsibility for myself. This midlife tipping point asks me to look at my habits, beliefs, and behaviours.
- I am a leader and I do the world a disservice if I disappear or accept invisibility. On the contrary, at this stage, I am called to make my most honest and authentic contribution.
- I know that real connection, in which we can all be ourselves and express our viewpoints and still belong, is the way forward.
- I share my story because I know it matters. My story creates connection and ignites empathy. It creates the blueprint for what's possible and makes room for younger generations to step into their power more easily.
- I recognize that all emotions are valid and important and have the self-compassion to be with whatever comes up.
- 8 I give myself permission to dream and challenge myself to see past what I've always believed to be true.
- I understand that there is a huge variety of experiences at this age and make room for perspectives that differ from my own.
- 10 I fight ageism when I see it including my own internalized limiting beliefs about getting older.
- I'm aware that what's important to me can change over time and allow myself to change with it.
- I believe fulfillment, self-acceptance, and self-expression are fundamental to healthy aging.
- I give myself permission to stay in the sacred mystery of not knowing what is next.
- I am open to learning new things. Curiosity is the key that unlocks midlife magic.
- 15 I am ready. These are my Power Years™.

Welcome to your Power Years™!